

The Rewards of Green Investing

Investing in sustainable and socially responsible companies can be a rewarding and fulfilling decision. Here are a few reasons why:

Living your passion for sustainability

You can drive a hybrid. You can buy organic produce. You can recycle and compost. You can put your money to work through companies that share your values and care about the planet.

When you invest in green and socially responsible companies, you are actively living a green and sustainable lifestyle. You are making a conscientious decision to have your investments reflect your values. Don't feel guilty about your investments. Invest and prosper through green companies. Future generations will thank you. Be part of the solution. It feels great.

Extensive research is the essence of Green Investing

All potential investments are evaluated through a rigorous evaluation process. We first exclude companies that do not fit our sustainability and social responsibility requirements. Remaining investments are further scrutinized for possible investment viability and suitability. If a potential investment is green, but it does not appear likely to generate an acceptable return, the potential investment is rejected. Green investing is not charity.

We strive to creatively research and examine a wide variety of potential investments. Green Investing is not limited to solar panels and fair trade coffee. Many firms across a wide variety of industries can consciously choose to limit their environmental impacts while acting in honorable and admirable ways. We believe in investing in companies that are doing everything possible to be sustainable.

Benefit from the changes in our society

Our world faces unprecedented challenges-pollution, overpopulation, increased energy demands, loss of biodiversity, just to name a few. Our society must evolve to survive and prosper. Our challenges can also be viewed as tremendous opportunities to develop creative solutions and bring about new ideas. Companies that can identify shifts in consciousness and present viable solutions will prosper. We can invest in forward thinking companies and participate in their prosperity.

Doing business with honorable people

Good management is a key to a good investment. Forward thinking companies recognize the need to be socially responsible. By carefully selecting sustainable companies, we are partnering with creative people and inspired leadership that demonstrate shared interests. Since equity investing is ownership, we can choose to be owners of companies that share our values and goals. Companies that value sustainability increase their probability for long term survival and success, thereby increasing the probability of a rewarding investment. Companies that fail to see the need for sustainability and social responsibility are jeopardizing their long term existence, reducing the probability of a positive investment.
