

Orlando Sentinel

September 21, 2008

See 'eco-sustainable' Destiny

Mark Pino
Sentinel Staff Writer

OSCEOLA COUNTY

There's been quite a bit of fuss made about Destiny since 2005, when word broke about the community planned on more than 41,000 acres. Most folks know that Destiny will someday change the face of south Osceola. But there are those who worry about what that might mean. On Wednesday, folks will get a look at some of the plans for what developers are now billing as America's first "eco-sustainable" city. Destiny is proposed for 250,000 residents, as well as businesses focused on developing clean technologies. The unveiling is part of a luncheon hosted by the Kissimmee/Osceola Chamber of Commerce, St. Cloud Chamber of Commerce and the Metro-Orlando Economic Development Commission at Gaylord Palms Resort & Convention Center. Call the Kissimmee/Osceola chamber at 407-847-3174 to reserve a space for lunch. Destiny is near Yeehaw Junction at Florida's Turnpike and State Road 60.